Academic and Administrative Career

Alauya has long been associated with Mindanao State University, where he served as Legal Director of the Legal Services Division.

In that role, he handled legal matters involving the university, supporting institutional governance and ensuring compliance with applicable laws and policies.

He later assumed the position of Vice Chancellor for Administration and Finance of MSU, a role that involves oversight of:

- Administrative systems
- Financial management
- Institutional operations

This position places him within the core leadership of the university.

Role in Islamic Finance Education

Alauya was part of the group that worked toward the establishment of academic offerings in Islamic Banking and Finance at Mindanao State University.

This initiative reflects a growing interest in integrating Islamic finance into formal education in the Philippines, particularly in the Bangsamoro context.

He has also served as a lecturer on:

- Islamic capital
- Islamic contracts

These areas are rooted in principles of Shari'ah and are central to the development of Islamic financial systems.

Legislative Experience

Alauya also served as an Assemblyman in the Regional Legislative Assembly of the Autonomous Region in Muslim Mindanao (ARMM).

As a member of the regional legislature, he took part in:

- Regional lawmaking
- Policy discussions
- Governance within the autonomous framework

This role connects his academic and administrative work with direct experience in public governance.

Professional Profile

Alauya's career combines multiple fields:

- Law
- Accounting
- Academic administration
- Regional governance

This combination reflects a practical approach to leadership, grounded in both technical expertise and institutional work.

Place in the Bangsamoro Narrative

Atty. Saaduddin M. Alauya Jr. represents a development-oriented strand of Bangsamoro leadership.

His work shows how education, law, and governance intersect, especially in institutions like Mindanao State University that serve as key centers of learning in the region.

His involvement in Islamic finance education also reflects a continuing effort to align academic programs with the cultural and economic context of the Bangsamoro.
