Early Life and Education

Basher was born in Lumba-Bayabao, Lanao del Sur. He studied at Mindanao State University in Marawi City, where he completed his undergraduate thesis on the folk wisdom (katunungan-bayan) of his hometown. He later earned his Master's degree with the thesis Lakam at Tawar: A Native Healing Practice, which won the Best Thesis award. He became a licensed professional teacher in 2019 and taught at Kakai Dayagun Dagalangit National High School. He is currently pursuing his Doctor of Philosophy (PhD) at the same university.

Career

Basher serves as a Barangay Kagawad in Bacolod II, Lumba-Bayabao. He was also recognized as the Community Head of a Learning Hub during the COVID-19 pandemic, the only hub in Lanao supported by the Angat Buhay program of former Vice President Leni Robredo. His advocacy centers on ensuring that no child is left behind in education, emphasizing both academic learning and character development.

Cultural and Literary Contributions

In 2021, Basher joined the Datu a Bantogen sa Ranao competition, where he was named 3rd runner-up and received the "Best History Award." His team was also nominated for Best in Advocacy, Editing, and Direction. He has published works including the essay UPUAN (Chair) through Lakbay-Diwa Publishing and the poem PARA SAYO (For You) through Pinagpala Publishing Services. He continues to write poems, haikus, short stories, and essays, believing that Maranao literature is the heartbeat of history and the pillar of identity.

Community Service

Basher emphasizes patience, compassion, and conviction in public service. He believes that true leadership is shown in listening to people, addressing local problems, and raising the standard of living despite limited resources. His projects and initiatives in the barangay reflect his commitment to grassroots change, rooted in culture and community solidarity.

Legacy

Basher aspires to highlight the cultural richness of Lumba-Bayabao and share Maranao heritage with the wider world. His work in education, literature, and public service reflects his dedication to preserving identity and fostering community growth.
