Background and Family

JB was born into a respected Maranao family rooted in Lanao del Sur. On his mother's side, he is the son of Hannia Kuzbari Lucman Derogongan, daughter of Dr. Macaurog B. Derogongan of Poona Bayabao, Lanao del Sur, and Bai Rohanifa Monaoray Kuzbari Lucman Derogongan of Bayang, Lanao del Sur. Through this line, he is the great-grandson of the late Congressman Sultan Haroun Al-Rashid M. Lucman, a prominent statesman and respected Bangsamoro leader whose legacy looms large in Mindanao's political history.

On his paternal side, his grandfather is Atty. Johnny Marohombsar, regarded by many as one of Mindanao's respected legal minds, remembered particularly for contributions associated with the development of autonomy in the Philippines. JB is also connected through his paternal heritage to Gen. Luis R. Marohombsar, among the early graduates of the Philippine Military Academy and a former governor of the then undivided Lanao.

This family background, spanning law, governance, and military service, formed a strong foundation for JB's own path in public life.

Education

JB pursued his military education at the Philippine Military Academy in Baguio City. Throughout his cadet years, he distinguished himself not only in military discipline and command, but also in academic performance, earning recognition as a Valedictorian candidate by the time of his graduation in 2017. His record at PMA reflected a rare combination of intellectual rigor and leadership ability that set him apart from his peers.

A Historic Milestone at PMA

The single most defining chapter of JB's cadet career came in 2017, when he was appointed Class Baron of the PMA "Salaknib" Class of 2017, making him the first Maranaw and the first Muslim cadet in PMA history to hold this position.

The Class Baron is the highest-ranking cadet in the Corps of Cadets, carrying responsibility for military discipline, command leadership, and representing the entire cadet corps. It's the most prestigious role a cadet can hold, and JB earned it on the strength of his performance, character, and the confidence of both his peers and the institution.

His appointment was celebrated across Mindanao and resonated deeply within the Muslim Filipino community, many of whom saw it as a long-overdue recognition of Bangsamoro excellence in the national military.

One of the most memorable moments of his cadet life came at PMA's 2017 graduation ceremonies, where he led the graduating class and personally escorted then President and Commander-in-Chief Rodrigo Duterte during the Presidential Inspection of the Line. This ceremonial duty is traditionally reserved for the academy's top cadet leader and stands as one of the most visible honors a graduating cadet can receive.

Chief of Staff Saber

Upon graduating from PMA, JB received the Chief of Staff Saber, one of the most prestigious awards the academy confers. The saber recognizes outstanding institutional leadership, command ability, and exemplary service throughout a cadet's time at the academy. Receiving this award, alongside his recognition as a Valedictorian candidate, cemented his standing as one of the most accomplished graduates of PMA Salaknib Batch 2017.

Service in the Philippine Navy

After his commissioning, JB joined the Philippine Navy and continued building his record in military service. In August 2021, he and three fellow Filipino naval officers took part in the International Combat Information Center Watch Officer Course, held at the International Surface Warfare Officers School in Newport, Rhode Island, USA. The four Filipino officers swept the top four places in the course, a remarkable collective

Legacy

JB's story is significant on multiple levels. As a Maranao officer in the Philippine Navy with historic distinctions at PMA, he represents the kind of leadership that the Bangsamoro region can offer the nation. His journey challenges the narrow narratives often applied to Muslim Filipinos and offers a compelling counter-narrative: that faith, discipline, and dedication can carry a young man from Lanao del Sur to the top of the country's most demanding military institution.

He continues to be a source of inspiration for young people in Mindanao and across the Bangsamoro region, many of whom see in him a living proof that the path to national service and excellence is open to them, too.
