Sultan Hadji Malic Romapunut Dimakuta

The Sultan Who Chose Service Over Power A Legacy of Peace – He Died on the Night of Power (Lailatul Qadr) And Lived Forever in the Hearts of Marawi and the 12 IB Also known as Sapolo Ago Dowa Ka Agama/Ingud

Sultan Hadji Malic Romapunut Dimakuta "Amai Kurot" – former Sultan Panoroganan of Sapolo Ago Dowa Ka Ingud, Pisugodan a Mala a Bayabao, Islamic City of Marawi.

The Sultan belonged to the noble and prominent clans of Lanao – the Romapunut and Dimakuta families.

Known as the Sultan a Maongangun (Sultan of Wisdom), Sultan Hadji Malic Romapunut Dimakuta was not just a leader but a true servant of peace. As a former undefeated City Councilor of Marawi, he was a pillar of his community – a religious advisor, a mediator of conflicts, and a public servant willing to work even in the darkest hours of the night just to ensure peace and provide for the needs of his fellow citizens.

He also served as a Consultant to the former Governor of the Undivided Lanao, Sheikh Hadji Alawi Mandangan Dimakuta – his cousin and closest friend.

During his term, he became an instrument of reconciliation, especially in settling rido (clan feuds) that plagued Marawi and the whole of Lanao. His dedication was not only for his 17 barangays in Sapolo Ago Dowa Ka Agama, where he was Sultan, but for all Muslim. His life was an offering – a sacrifice for peace.

The Great Departure – A Great Faith

On June 19, 2017, while the battle in Marawi was raging, Sultan Hadji Malic passed away in Kayontor, Kauswagan, Lanao del Norte. But his death was not ordinary – he died on the holiest night of Ramadan, Lailatul Qadr (the Night of Power). According to Islamic belief, whoever dies on this night is guaranteed entry into Paradise. His family and followers believe he was blessed with such a death – a miracle that proved his pure heart and sincere service to God (Allah s.w.) and to his fellowmen.

His last wish was to rest beside his closest friend and cousin, Governor Sheikh Hadji Alawi Mandangan Dimakuta, who lies in Wato Balindong. But because of the war, he was buried beside another beloved cousin, Hadji Musa Dimakuta.

The Legacy of a True Leader

Though Sultan Hadji Malic Dimakuta has passed, his legacy of peace, service, and devotion remains alive. His children and grandchildren continue to serve the people, just like his daughter, who became an undefeated City Councilor of Marawi, Senior Board Member, Vice Governor, and OIC Governor of Lanao del Sur – Bae Monera Dimakuta Macabangon (Bae a Labi sa Panoroganan o Sapolo Ago Dowa Ingud).

His life is a testament to the true meaning of being a Muslim and a leader not for power, but for love of fellowmen and commitment to justice.

A true leader never dies he becomes a memory, a lesson, and an inspiration in every heart of the people he served.

A tribute to a great leader of Marawi and all of Lanao del Sur. Sultan Hadji Malic Romapunut Dimakuta "Amai Kurot"
