Early Life and Formation

Yacob grew up in Maganoy, a town in the heart of Maguindanao province.

His parents, Maslamama Yacob and Salama Omar, ensured he received education spanning both Islamic and secular traditions.

He attended Al-Islaah Elementary School and Ma'had Kutawato Al Islamic for his early schooling, absorbing the intellectual currents of his community while maintaining connection to broader educational horizons.

This dual formation would later define his approach to governance: one that honors Islamic principles while engaging secular institutional frameworks.

Education and Intellectual Formation

Yacob pursued advanced study with deliberate purpose.

He earned a Bachelor of Science in Shariah Law from the International Islamic University in Madinah, Saudi Arabia, positioning himself within Islamic jurisprudential traditions.<ref name="speaker_profile">Speaker of Parliament Profile, Bangsamoro Parliament Official Website (2026).</ref>

Upon returning to the Philippines, he shifted toward public administration, completing a Master's degree at Cotabato City State Polytechnic College.

In 2013, Cotabato State University conferred upon him a Doctor of Philosophy in Public Administration, granting him the academic credentials to match his growing practical experience in institutional development.<ref name="phd_conferred">Mohammad Yacob elected new Bangsamoro Parliament speaker, BTA Media (Oct 21, 2025).</ref>

The Bangsamoro Development Agency Years

Before entering formal government, Yacob spent nine years (2010-2019) as Executive Director of the Bangsamoro Development Agency (BDA), the development arm of the Moro Islamic Liberation Front.

Established under the 2001 GPH-MILF Tripoli Agreement, the BDA was tasked with delivering relief, rehabilitation, and socio-economic programs to conflict-affected communities across Mindanao.

Under Yacob's leadership, the agency became more than a relief mechanism.

He championed modernized approaches to food security, rural livelihoods, and infrastructure rehabilitation in some of Mindanao's most marginalized municipalities.

His work bridged a critical gap: it demonstrated that development and peace-building are not separate tracks but deeply intertwined.

Communities recovering from conflict needed not just security, but dignified pathways to economic participation and institutional trust.

Alongside his development work, Yacob served as a visiting professor in graduate studies and as a Shariah Advisor for Al Amanah Investment Islamic Bank, maintaining intellectual engagement even while managing operational responsibilities.

Political Career: Building Democratic Institutions

Minister of Agriculture

When the Bangsamoro Organic Law was ratified and the Bangsamoro Transition Authority (BTA) was established in 2019, President Rodrigo Duterte appointed Yacob as the inaugural Minister of Agriculture, Fisheries, and Agrarian Reform (MAFAR).

In this portfolio, he focused on modernizing irrigation systems in conflict-affected municipalities, establishing food security frameworks for the newly formed region, and creating linkages between smallholder farmers and regional markets.

His tenure emphasized practical institutional building rather than grand proclamations.

Senior Minister and Bureaucratic Coordination

In April 2025, Yacob was elevated to Senior Minister of the BARMM, succeeding Abunawas Maslamama.<ref name="senior_min">Dr. Mohammad Yacob Appointed as BARMM Senior Minister, Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries, and Agrarian Reform (April 8, 2025).</ref>

As Senior Minister, he served as the primary coordinator of the regional bureaucracy under Chief Minister Ahod "Al-haj Murad" Ebrahim, managing cross-ministry collaboration and ensuring policy coherence across the emerging institution.

Speaker of the Bangsamoro Parliament

On 21 October 2025, the 80-member Bangsamoro Parliament unanimously elected Yacob as its Speaker, filling the vacancy left by the passing of Atty. Ali Pangalian Balindong.

His election underscored rare consensus among competing BARMM political blocs, a testament to his reputation for institutional neutrality and procedural rigor.

Upon taking his oath, Yacob articulated a leadership philosophy centered on what he termed "moral governance": a commitment to transparent deliberation, equitable representation of all BARMM communities, and institutional strength grounded in constitutional fidelity rather than factional advantage.<ref name="pna_speaker">Bangsamoro Parliament elects new speaker, key officers, Philippine News Agency (Oct 22, 2025).</ref>

As Speaker, he presides over parliament during a critical transitional moment.

The deliberative body is moving toward the first regular parliamentary elections, and Yacob's role is to ensure that the institution matures with credible procedures and public confidence.

He also serves as Vice President for Southern Mindanao of the United Bangsamoro Justice Party (UBJP).

Legacy and Institutional Contribution

Yacob's trajectory traces a quiet revolution in Bangsamoro governance.

He did not build his authority through patronage networks or rhetorical flourish, but through demonstrated competence in translating policy into livelihood, and institutions into trust.

His signature contribution is the model he embodies: development practitioner turned parliamentary leader, one who carries conflict-affected communities into the chambers of power not as abstractions but as lived experience.

In an autonomous region still negotiating its place within the Philippine state and its own internal political ecology, Yacob represents something rare: a senior leader whose authority derives equally from grassroots credibility and institutional legitimacy.

His emphasis on moral governance acknowledges that institutions in post-conflict contexts cannot survive on procedure alone; they require leaders willing to subordinate partisan advantage to constitutional principle.

Challenges and Ongoing Work

The Bangsamoro Parliament faces structural challenges: resource constraints, coordination with the national government, and the need to deliver tangible benefits to diverse Muslim communities while maintaining political cohesion ahead of 2025 elections.

As Speaker, Yacob navigates these constraints without the resources of mature legislatures, yet with heightened scrutiny from both BARMM constituents and national observers.

His responsibility is to demonstrate that the autonomous region's parliamentary system can function with integrity and responsiveness.

Recognition

Yacob has been recognized by civil society organizations focused on peace-building, good governance, and development effectiveness for his work in bridging development and democratic institution building.

His elevation to Speaker was widely interpreted as affirmation of his commitment to procedural neutrality in a region where deliberative bodies have historically been instruments of factional power.
